Qualifications

Please describe your relevant analytical skills.

Analysis is one of my better skills. In my 37 1/2 years at IBM, I held technical, project management, and administrative (people management, budget) positions, where analytical and problem-solving skills were critical to job success. I have good skills in developing and using spreadsheets for all kinds of situations. I have decades of experience in reading reports as well as analyzing charts and graphs. I am comfortable with statistics and in analyzing data of all kinds and at all levels.

Please describe your ability to be impartial.

Part of my reputation at IBM was for being objective, honest, and fair. I never took sides, instead choosing to look at the facts, data, and information before coming to any conclusions or decisions.

All my experience at IBM has ingrained in me the cultural values of being unbiased relative to race, skin color, creed, gender, marital status, national origin, and professional beliefs. I did not use any of these criteria in any hiring, job assignment, or layoff decisions. My 10 years membership in Toastmasters International has trained me to listen, speak clearly, and provide unbiased and objective feedback to all club members on how to be better speakers and leaders

Please describe your appreciation for the City of Austin's diverse demographics and geography.

Austin is truly a city rich in diversity. I believe that honoring diversity, and even more, taking advantage of diversity leads us all to having a richer culture and experience, and achieving accomplishments we can be proud of. It gives us a competitive edge as a city. We all benefit by understanding and treasuring each other. I am truly excited to be a part of such a diverse culture, and have had that excitement for the 42 years that I have lived here.

Please provide any other information you wish to be considered during the selection of the most qualified applicants for the Commission.

My educational and training background as an Electrical Engineer, a businessman, and a project manager along with my actual work experiences both at IBM and at non-profits makes me well suited to be an objective and hard-working member of the commission.
